A great book to hand to skeptical friends and family!

Critics of homeschooling often point to socialization as a reason for sending kids to traditional schools. With exhaustive research and interviews with hundreds of homeschooling parents and children, Rachel Gathercole illustrates how homeschooled children, besides doing better academically, are better prepared socially than their traditionally-schooled counterparts.

“The definitive book regarding the socialization question.”

—Foreword Magazine

“Rachel Gathercole has provided the most complete answer to the socialization question that I have ever seen. Homeschoolers, you need this book!”

—Mike Smith, President, Home School Legal Defense Association
